SAVE MONEY BY BETTER CARE

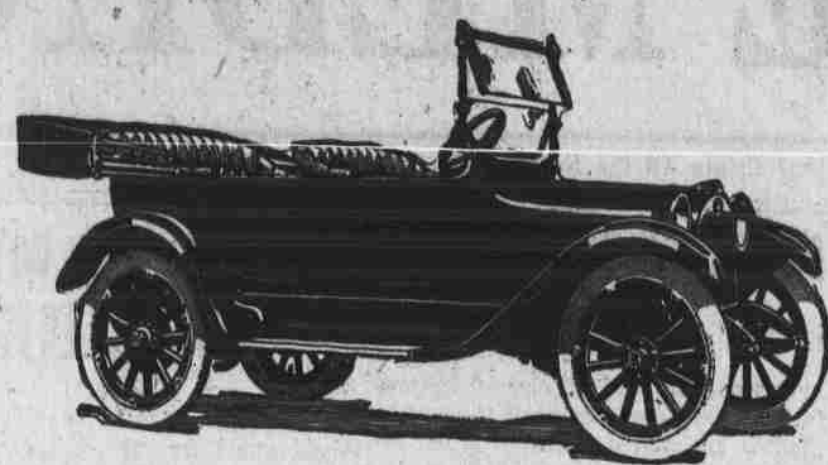

Two and one half million dollars could be saved in Ohio each year, if farmers would take better care of their farm machinery, according to Virgil Overholt, agricultural engineering specialist of the Agricultural Extension Service. The total valuation of farm machinery in Ohio is fifty-one million dollars, according to the census abstracts of Ohio. The value of farm buildings is placed at 197 million dollars. Millions could be saved annually by keeping the buildings painted and repaired on Ohio farms.
